Speedy Action On Marshall's Aid Plan Is Expected

Billions For Europe
Asked By Secretary

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall solemnly urged Congress today to take the "real risks" of helping "prostrate" Europe at a cost of $8,000,000,000 in the next 19 months—and more billions later.

Marshall told members of the Senate and House Foreign Affairs Committees the need "is real and it is urgent" for:

"Speedy" action on an emergency fund of $500,000,000 to enable France, Italy and Austria to "survive" through March 31.

Another $7,500,000,000 for the following 15 months to start a "world recovery program" in 16 Western European nations. Over four years the cost might soar to $16,000,000,000 or $20,000,000,000, he said.

He spoke just a week before Congress meets in a special session to tackle European aid and domestic inflation. Some key members of the Senate and House committees quickly chorused a measure of approval of the general ideas Marshall offered. But they said they want all the facts.

Bill May Be Offered Monday
Rep. Eaton (R-N.J.), chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, told reporters that plans are to introduce an emergency bill next Monday and have it ready for the House by Wednesday.

"We hope to get it to the floor the middle of next week, but we can't guarantee that," he said.

Marshall made it clear that only opposition can be expected from Russia, even though the program "menaces no one" and "pursues no sinister purpose."

He said:

"We can act for our own good by acting for the world's good."

The Secretary cautioned that automatic success cannot be guaranteed for the program.

"The risks are real," he said. "They are, however, risks which have been carefully calculated, and I believe the chances of success are good."

Without a single interruption, the Senate and House committees met together and heard Marshall through his 5,000-word statement. No questions were asked. They came later in the week.

Sen. Capper (R-Kas) labelled Marshall's program a "sound" one and said "I'm ready for it." Others called Marshall's outline of the problem "splendid" and "comprehensive."

Vorys Sees Danger
Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio) said it was a "very good lead-off statement," but added that he saw "grave danger and difficulty" in a Marshall proposal for separate agreements with each country that gets American help.

Vorys said a single agreement with all countries would be better. Marshall presented a proposed bill to authorize the $500,000,000 emergency appropriation. Apparently in anticipation of demands already arising that this country get proper credit for any assistance it gives, the bill calls for agreements with France, Italy and Austria which would require "full and continuous publicity" as to the purpose, source, character and amounts of goods made available.

Furthermore, it says, wherever practicable commodity on it sinners

President Designates Nov. 27 As Thanksgiving

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (AP)—President Truman, issuing a proclamation designating November 27 as Thanksgiving Day, asked the nation today to observe it "by generously sharing our bounty with needy people" of other countries.

"May our Thanksgiving this year be tempered by humility, by sympathy with those who lack abundance, and by compassion for those in want x x x."

High Court's "Federal Register" Decision Absurd, Jackson Asserts

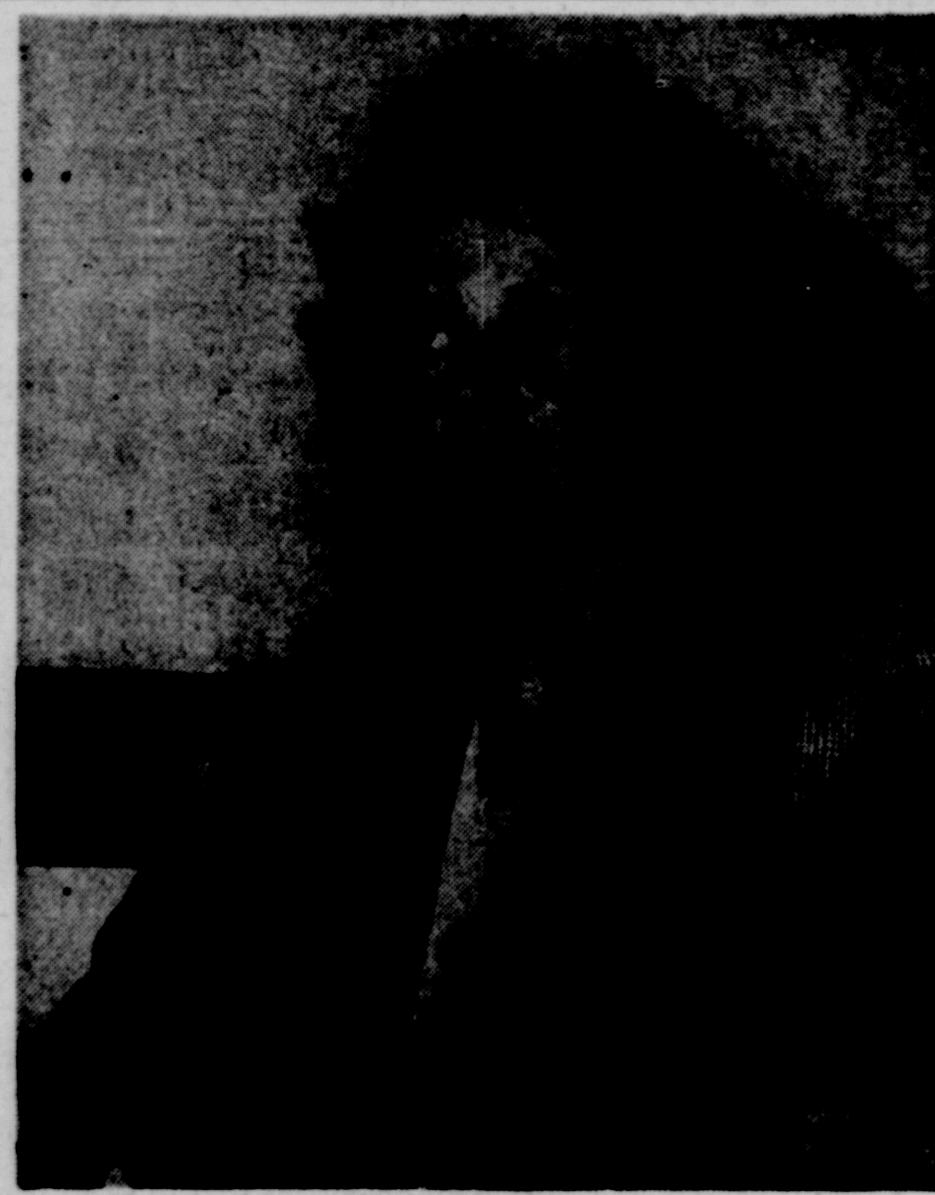

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (AP)—The Supreme Court, in a decision which Justice Jackson blasted as absurd, ruled today that it's up to a farmer who takes out federal crop insurance to familiarize himself with regulations published in the "Federal Register."

This is a daily publication containing government rules, regulations and decisions.

"To my mind," said Jackson, "it is an absurdity to hold that every farmer who insures his crops knows what the Federal Register contains or even knows that there is such a publication."

"If he were to peruse this voluminous and dull publication x x x he would never need crop insurance, for he would never get time to plant any crops."

Justice Douglas joined Jackson's dissent. Justices Black and Rutledge also dissented, but did not

WINS DIVORCE

Actress Rita Hayworth is shown above as she appeared in court yesterday to divorce Orson Welles, author-actor-director-producer of stage, screen and radio. She alleged he didn't want to make a home for her.

Rita Granted Her Freedom From Welles

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10. (AP)—Mink-swathed Rita Hayworth, of the movies, objected to being a 25 per cent wife. So today she won a divorce from Actor-Writer-Director-Producer Orson Welles.

Charging the one-time "Boy Wonder" of the theatrical world with cruelty, the beautiful actress told Superior Court that Welles was away from home three-fourths of the time during their marriage of slightly over four years.

"Mr. Welles," said Mrs. Welles, "showed no interest in establishing a home. Mr. Welles told me he never should have married in the first place, as it interfered with his freedom in his way of life."

"If he felt the urge to hop off for the Orient or Europe on the spur of the moment, he wanted to be able to go and come as he pleased, without the burden of a wife and child."

Miss Hayworth, clad in a gray-checked suit and a luxurious mink coat, also testified that her multitalented husband caused her mental anguish by neglecting her during the months preceding the birth of their daughter, Rebecca, now 3.

The actress was awarded custody of the child, plus $50 a week for her support.

The decree was granted by Judge William B. McKesson after a short hearing, in which Welles did not contest the action.

Theater Owner At Philly Won't Show "Outlaw"

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10. (AP)—William Goldman, president of William Goldman Theaters, Inc., said today he was withdrawing the film "The Outlaw" from its showing at the Erlanger theater in deference to the position of Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia.

Goldman, in a letter to the Archbishop of the Philadelphia Roman Catholic Diocese, said "I hope that you will clearly understand that we still believe that there is nothing in the picture that would offend public morals or decency."

Cardinal Dougherty had demanded that both "The Outlaw" and "Forever Amber" be withdrawn from Philadelphia theaters.

The vote, overruling a decision of the Idaho Supreme Court holding that the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation should pay $3,900 to Merrill Brothers, Bonneville County (Idaho) farmers, thus was 5 to 4.

Federal Crop Insurance, a government corporation, contended that under its contract with the Merrill's spring wheat reseeded on 400 acres of winter wheat acreage was ineligible for insurance.

In affirming a $3,900 award to the Merrill's, the Idaho Supreme Court said that if the corporation were a private insurance company there would be no doubt as to its liability.

In another decision today, the court ruled the government may not collect interest on cotton market quota penalties from the time the penalties were first asserted to due until a United States district court approved them.

Taft Says Policy Toward Germany Hindering Europe

U. S. Taxpayers Asked To Remedy "Failure"

NEW YORK, Nov. 10. (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) said tonight the policy of the United States toward Germany was "even more important to the re-establishment of Europe than the Marshall plan."

"In fact the condition which exists in Europe today can be traced very largely to the administration's own policy in Germany," he told the 62nd annual dinner of the Ohio Society of New York.

Taft, who recently announced he would seek the 1948 Republican presidential nomination, said he favored some kind of aid to Europe but urged that such expenditures be made gradually, and with full knowledge of their effect upon the American economy.

He said support for the Marshall plan had been developed by a "carefully planned propaganda, stimulated by the State Department and by secret meetings of influential people in Washington and Hot Springs."

Only two weeks ago, Taft continued, the Secretary of State said there was "as yet no Marshall plan at all."

"We knew only what the foreign nations had asked for," Taft said, "but the propaganda machine is ready to bullybush the Marshall plan, whatever Secretary Marshall finally says that it is. Let us have all the facts and debate them fully. The people have been urged and persuaded too often to accept on faith and without question the foreign policy of the administration."

Regarding Germany, Taft said that not only has the government's policy toward that country "deprived the rest of Europe of many products which could be manufactured in Germany" but has deprived the Germans "of a market for their own exports."

He continued:

"It has thus completely upset the economy of Europe and now we are called upon for taxes from our taxpayers to remedy the failure of the administration."

Two Men Fighting Mine Fire Injured In Blast

PRINCETON, Ind., Nov. 10. (AP)—Three heavy gas explosions at the Kings coal mine, where a mine had been smouldering most of the day, caused injuries to two miners and shook an area of several square miles tonight.

Shifting fighting the fire escaped through an air shaft, but two of them were injured.

Miners said the fire in the main entry shaft apparently had caused gas to accumulate. The first two blasts were heard in Princeton, three miles away.

The fire started when an electrically powered tow-car overturned and caught fire.

Hughes Says Gen. Meyers Sought Loan While Plane Deal Was "Hanging Fire"

B-29 Plows Into Aircraft Storage Area

Two Crewmen Killed; Planes Set Afire

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 10. (AP)—Two crew members were killed and five others injured, one critically, when their Army B-29 bomber crashed into an aircraft storage area on a takeoff from Tinker Air Field here late today.

The huge plane exploded, broke into four pieces and burned. Several P-47 fighter planes were destroyed by fire and others damaged.

Names of the two men killed were not disclosed pending notification of next of kin. They died in the station hospital soon after the crash.

The injured were listed by the Army Public Relations officer as: First Lt. D. E. Quillin, pilot, living with his wife at Salina, Kas.; home in Oxford, Ohio.

M/Sgt. Wendell G. McFarlin, engineer, Rt. 5, Shelbyville, Tenn. S/Sgt. Pasquale A. Manz, left gunner, New York City.

Cpl. Robert A. Quinn, right gunner, Providence, R. I.

Pfc. J. F. Anderson, Worthington, Minn. Anderson was a ground crewman taking his first airplane ride.

Surgeons at the station hospital would not identify the man seriously injured, but said he will recover and the others will be up and about "in a few days."

The two killed were the co-pilot and the flight engineer. Their names were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Sgt. Manz was named a hero in the crash, delaying his own escape from the burning plane to free Quinn, who got stuck in an escape hatch when the parachute he was wearing caught.

GOVERNMENT OFFERS TO BUY UP HENS WHICH LAY DOWN ON THE JOB

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (AP)—The government today offered to buy up hens which don't lay many eggs and put them into "deep freeze" for later use. The move is designed to save upwards of 30,000,000 bushels of grain for Europe in the next 11 months.

Simultaneously, Chairman Charles Luckman, of the Citizens Food Committee, called on the nation's milling industries to volunteer their help in the overall grain-saving program.

Luckman notified 23 major millers that he will call them to Washington shortly and ask a "definite proposal" for the saving of grain. Originally he set Thursday as the day, but later postponed it until further notice to avoid conflict with an Agriculture Department meeting on farm conservation in which several of the millers will take part.

The government's offer to buy low-productive hens from farmers is expected to encourage poultry men to cull at least 40,000,000 more hens from their flocks by January 1 than they would normally eliminate.

The hens will be killed, frozen and stored for resale to consumers, the armed services, and possibly export markets next year when supplies of poultry and red meats are expected to be considerably smaller than now.

Job Offer Denied By Plane Builder

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. (AP)—Millionaire Planemaker Howard Hughes said today Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers sought unsuccessfully to get Hughes to lend him $200,000 for a $10,000,000 bond-buying deal at a time when the General was negotiating a wartime contract with him.

Further, Hughes told senators on the War Investigating Committee, Meyers wanted Hughes to guarantee him against losing money on the bond transaction.

The plane builder denied previously testimony by Meyers that Hughes offered him, during the war, a postwar job in which he could name his own salary.

"I wasn't looking for a general manager after the war," Hughes told the committee, "because I had sense enough to know they'd be a dime a dozen then."

Meyers Snorts Angriily

Meyers, seated nearby, snorted angrily as Hughes told his story. The planemaker said it was his recollection that the proposed bond deal involved the buying of $10,000,000 of Liberty Bonds on margin.

He said Meyers proposed that, with the $200,000 covering two margin points on the bond purchase, Hughes would guarantee to put up $100,000 for each additional point they declined.

Hughes said his refusal to lend the $200,000 "resulted in a complete breach of friendship between me and Benny Meyers" but that Meyers apparently approved a Hughes contract for photo reconnaissance planes anyhow.

Treasury officials said Hughes must have been using the term "Liberty Bonds" for another type of security, as these were issued during World War I and have all matured. They said it would have been possible in 1944 for a man to swing a $10,000,000 government bond purchase by putting up $200,000 of his own money plus $8,800,000 of borrowed funds. If he bought at par—100—his chance of a profit would come in the market rising above par. He could sell out at 102, for example, pay back his creditors and be $200,000 to the good.

General Denies Statement
Hughes said he seemed to recall, in connection with the $200,000 question, that Meyers told him he had made "similar transactions" with other people. "I don't remember," Hughes added, "whether they were in the same position as I with respect to the government."

Previously, Meyers denied a sworn statement by Neil McCarthy, former Hughes attorney, that he (Meyers) tried to borrow $50,000 from Hughes in 1944.

Hughes told the committee, which is investigating his $40,000,000 aircraft contracts with the government, that the loan matter was discussed in conversations between himself and McCarthy.

"When I finally and definitely turned down the loan proposition," Hughes added, "I thought Gen. Meyers was going to find some way to throw a monkey wrench into that P-11 plane contract if it was the last thing he ever did."

Greece Ready To Resume Relations With Bulgaria

ATHENS, Nov. 10. (AP)—Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris told Parliament today Greece was ready to resume diplomatic relations with Bulgaria. He announced at the same time that orders had been issued for the army to take the offensive immediately against rebellious guerrilla forces.

Tsaldaris, also a deputy premier in the coalition cabinet of Liberal Premier Themistokles Sophoulis, declared the "fate" of the government was linked with a firm resolve to enforce its austere economic program, which he said had been "undetermined" in the last two weeks.

GIFT FOR PRINCESS

Four-year-old Julie Alora smiles over a turkey which she is sending to London for the wedding reception of Princess Elizabeth. Julie walked away from her Brooklyn home yesterday and made her way by subway to Manhattan where she entered the office of a firm which sends by air express food packages to Europe. The child ordered the turkey "for Princess Elizabeth," offering to pay with the contents of her piggy bank. The child said she knew "there isn't any food in England" and that she was "afraid there won't be anything good to eat" at the wedding reception.

United States And Russia Agree On Holy Land Plan

Ingrid Bergman And Bing Crosby Retain Honors

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10. (AP)—Ingrid Bergman and Bing Crosby retained their titles as film-dom's most popular actress and actor, the magazine Boxoffice announced today as it concluded its 11th annual popularity poll.

Voters included critics, theater exhibitors and members of women's clubs, film councils, civic and educational organizations.

Roy Rogers nosed out Gene Autry in the western division.

Heavy Fighting Rages In China

PEIPING, Nov. 10. (AP)—The heaviest fighting of the civil war in China proper roared today around the railway junction of Shihkiachwang, where government warplanes and a hard-pressed garrison held an estimated 100,000 attacking Communists at bay.

Latest government dispatches from the town, 172 miles by rail southwest of Peiping, said the Communists repeatedly reached the ancient walls, only to be hurled back.

An emergency airfield inside the town was reported completed to replace the regular field captured by the Communists, but Red artillery fire blasted into it and there was no word whether planes were attempting to use it.

The air force, unopposed in the air, made repeated sorties from bases around Peiping, bombing and strafing in the most concentrated aerial operations of the two-year war.

Soviet Compromise Proposal Accepted

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 10. (AP)—The United States and Russia, with a rare show of unity, agreed late today on a Soviet compromise plan for enforcement of the proposed partition of Palestine.

The plan was sent on immediately to the United Nations Assembly's subcommittee considering proposals for cutting up the Holy Land into sovereign Arab and Jewish countries.

Dr. Herbert V. Evans, of Australia, chairman of the Assembly's 57-nation special Palestine committee, predicted a vote would be taken on the partition plan within four days.

British sources received the announcement of United States-Soviet agreement on the new plan without comment, except to say Britain's position had been stated by Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech-Jones when he told the full Palestine committee September 26:

"If the Assembly should recommend a policy which is not acceptable to the Jews and Arabs, the United Kingdom government would not feel able to implement it."

A spokesman for the Jewish Agency for Palestine said "we are pleased" over the United States-Soviet agreement and "believe it will assure a two-third majority vote in the assembly."

Representatives had no immediate comment.

The new plan, which was hammered out on the basis of a Soviet compromise, calls for termination of the British mandate over Palestine May 1, 1948, and the creation of Independent Arab and Jewish nations not later than July 1, 1948.

Russia Offers Five-Point Big Four Meeting Agenda

Reuther Endorsed
By CIO President

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 10. (AP)—President Walter Reuther, of the CIO United Auto Workers, was endorsed for another term by CIO President Philip Murray today and the union convention then backed Reuther on a key issue of signing non-Communist affidavits.

The delegates, by at least a two to one margin on a standing vote, decided to direct all national UAW officers to sign the affidavits as that the union can carry bargaining and unfair labor cases to the National Labor Relations Board under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Murray's hearty endorsement virtually assured Reuther of no major opposition for the presidency. Combined with the convention floor victory, it boosted the odds that a full slate of Reutherites would be swept into three other top offices with the president in the union elections starting tomorrow.

The union's position on the non-Communist affidavits was unquestionably the most important convention issue aside from the election itself. It was set forth in a Reuther-sponsored minority report of the convention resolutions committee.

New Constitution Imposed By Siam Military Clique

Monarchy Regains Some Of Its Power

BANGKOK, Siam, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The military clique ruling Siam by virtue of a bloodless revolt imposed a new constitution today upon the country under which the monarchy regained some of the powers it lost more than a year ago.

Piun Songgram, the wartime premier-dictator of Siam, and his military associates appointed Luang Aphaiwongse as Premier and named a five-man privy council, which promulgated swiftly the new constitution.

Songgram, who led the revolt yesterday which overthrew the government of Premier Thamrong Nawasawat, has no post thus far in the new regime. He is known to be regarded with disfavor by the United States and Britain because of his collaboration with the Japanese during the war.

In Washington, the United States State Department said it needed more information about the overthrow of the Siamese government before it could decide on whether to extend recognition to the new regime. Press Officer Michael McDermott said United States Ambassador Edwin Stanton had furnished "considerable information" but many details remained "unclear."

(Prince Subhas Swast Swastivat said at Lake Success, N. Y., he would quit his post with the Siamese delegation to the United Nations Assembly if he were not assured that the new Siamese regime were completely democratic.

The Prince, who worked with the Siamese underground to aid the Allies during the war, said the delegation had received brief instructions from Bangkok to "carry on" while efforts were being made to form a new government. United Nations officials said the Siamese delegation would continue to receive recognition as long as they retain their credentials. Siam was admitted to the United Nations last year.

Under the new constitution, drafted by Seni Pramot, former Premier and one-time ambassador to the United States, the Parliament will continue as a two-chamber body but the Senate will be appointed by the King instead of elected by the people.

Police, Probing Couple's Murder, Release Negro

BECKLEY, W. Va., Nov. 10.—(AP)—State police, probing the shooting of a prominent Beckley businessman and the attractive wife of a dentist, released a 33-year-old negro who had been held over the weekend for questioning. Prosecuting Attorney Ned H. Ragland said today.

The prosecutor said there was insufficient evidence to warrant the further holding of the negro and that he was discharged from the county jail last night.

Investigators still were without a major clue in the slaying of E. Ray Bailey, 30, furniture store sales manager, and Mrs. Nellie Mae Rand, 30, wife of Dr. Kenneth K. Rand. Their bodies, each shot once in the head, were discovered last Wednesday by two hunters in a ravine along little-used Penman road, nine miles from the city.

Murray said at his news conference he still has no intention of signing an affidavit himself. Brother Held In Death Of Unwed Sister's Baby BALTIMORE, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Martin Philpott, 24-year-old employee of the Glenn L. Martin Company, was held without bail today on a charge of first degree murder in the death of his unwed sister's day-old daughter.

Essex police said the sister, Miss Gertrude Philpott, 23, also had been charged with murder. She was said to be at her brother's home today under care of a physician.

Philpott waived a preliminary hearing in Essex Police Court when arraigned before Magistrate Frank Martin. He was arrested Saturday by a plant guard who discovered him holding the newspaper-wrapped child near an incinerator at the Martin company. Police removed the still living infant to the Baltimore City Hospital, where she died yesterday.

Tomsko Named Director Super Market Institute

Albert T. Tomsko, manager of the Community Super Market here, was elected a director of the Super Market Institute, national organization of the super market operators of the nation at a meeting held in Chicago last week, where he participated in the program.

Tomsko was elected at the organization's Tenth Annual convention held at the Hotel Sherman, where more than 4,000 super market operators, food manufacturers, and farm leaders met for a four-day discussion of methods of improving efficiency in the operation of food stores as an aid in combating high costs.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tomsko and Mr. and Mrs. John J. Robinson returned over the weekend from attending the convention.

Alfred Parleton Serving In Korea

A Cumberland, T-5 Alfred Parleton, son of Mrs. Cora Parleton, 433 Goethe Street, is a member of the first guard detachment in Korea with a two-way radio set-up, operating at the 61st Ordnance Group. The radio car, manned by personnel of the Provisional Guard Detachment, patrol a major portion of Korea Base Command at Camp Ascom.

The jeep-home set combination is one of three new innovations inaugurated by the Detachment, the other two being searchlight towers and guard dogs.

T-5 Parleton's job consists of driving a radio car, keeping in contact with the home set at regular intervals, and handling emergency calls that come in while he is on duty. The six jeeps, containing two men each (driver and radio operator) operate 24 hours a day, thereby providing around the clock security for the 61st Ordnance group.

YOUNG MOTHERS SHOULD KNOW

It is important to know that children are more subject to colds if their resistance is low due to insufficient vitamin A. Father John's Medicine builds resistance to such colds by supplying plenty of vitamin A. It also gives prompt relief from coughs and throat irritation due to colds by soothing the throat.

Greek Situation Worries Truman

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—President Truman said today that American and has kept Greece "still free," but that the overall military picture has darkened because of support thrown to Communist-led guerrillas by Greece's northern neighbors.

In his first report to Congress on the $400,000,000 Greek-Turkish aid program, Mr. Truman made these points:

1. There are no United States combat troops in Greece.

2. To restore order, "deliance must be placed on creation of a United States commission which can effectively seal the Greek border against assistance to the guerrillas from Greece's northern neighbors"—Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania.

"Although the number of rebel guerrillas threatening this (Greek) security is small, they are fanatically led by Communists who have recruited many hardened criminals, and who have forced loyal Greeks into their service by threats against them or their families."

Expressing "grave concern" that "underlying causes of economic and political unrest" still exist in Greece, Mr. Truman went on:

"It can nevertheless be said that all of the elements for Greek recovery are now present and can be set to operative once internal order is established. If order can be restored, there is every reason to be optimistic about the recovery of Greece. If order is not restored, there can be no recovery."

Pakistan Protests Indian Occupation Of Junagadh

NEW DELHI, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Pakistan government said tonight it had lodged a protest with the government of the Dominion of India concerning the occupation of the State of Junagadh and the assumption of the administration function.

A press note issued by the Pakistan government said it had demanded that India withdraw its troops from the 4,100-square mile state on the Kathiawar peninsula and relinquish the administration.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, of India, said yesterday his government had taken over the "temporary" administration of Junagadh as the request of the state's Premier, Shah Nawaz Bhutto, to save it from "a complete administrative breakdown."

Redraft Of Bay Bridge Bill Answers Objections

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., of Maryland, submitted to Secretary of the Army Royal today a redraft of a bill pending in the U. S. Senate that would authorize Maryland to construct a toll bridge or tunnel under Chesapeake Bay.

The Department of the Army had objected to the bill on the ground that it would permit Maryland to spend toll revenues from the proposed bridge or tunnel on other similar projects.

Lane in a statement issued after his conference with Royal said the redraft of the bill answers the Army's objection.

As redrafted, Lane said, tolls collected from the proposed bridge would be utilized solely to liquidate its cost.

End Of Rent Curbs Seen

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 10.—(AP)—United States Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) who helped draft the rent control extension law, declared today "present application of the law is very disturbing" and that he was "afraid it is going to be impossible to continue" the law when it expires February 29, 1948.

Stassen Urges 50 Per Cent Tax Lid

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Harold E. Stassen proposed today that the government rivet a lid of 50 per cent on peacetime income taxes to encourage fresh job producing investments.

"Our income taxes are too high for times of peace," the announced candidate for the Republican presidential nomination declared in a book entitled "Where I Stand."

Stassen held a chatty news conference, timed to coincide with the appearance of his book, in which he calls for "dynamic capitalism." A reporter asked him whether the conference would not result in extensive book reviews by the newspaper wire services and if this were not an example of dynamic capitalism.

"Well, it's individualism," smiled the candidate.

"The former Minnesota Governor was asked whether a forthcoming trip, including some stops in the South, is a hunt for delegates who would vote for him in the nominating convention."

"Specifically, definitely and frankly—yes," responded Stassen.

After he remarked that he was "optimistic" about world peace, he was asked how optimistic he was of the chances of "Stassen for President."

"We have a fighting chance," he said.

The proposed agenda, offered by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov through his deputy, was presented to the deputies who are drafting preliminary plans for the treaty talks. Thus far they have reached no major agreements in the preliminary discussions.

American informants said these five topics were presented by Russian Deputy Andrei Smirnov on instructions from Molotov:

"1. Procedure for preparation of a German treaty.
"2. Form and scope of a provisional German political organization."

"3. Report of the control council on the implementation of the Moscow session of the Foreign Ministers' Council with regard to questions of demilitarization.

"4. Economic principles, level of postwar industry and a plan of reparations.
"5. Report of the commission on the Austrian treaty."

The Eleventh Hour . . .

Twenty-nine years ago today, in the Compeigne Forest of France, a small group of generals signed a paper that brought an end to the bloodiest war that had ever been fought. Probably as they signed this paper, some thought it would mean Peace forever, while others were at that very moment plotting new war of revenge. Whatever their motives, the world was soon to engage again in conflict, and the noble ideals born of the First World War were forgotten.

Today, even as at that Armistice, we stand at the eleventh hour of our civilization. The sacrifices that have been made are in vain if mankind insists on trying to exterminate himself every twenty years. Let us bend our minds to the establishment of Lasting Peace and Understanding throughout the world. Let us pray that the sacrifices of 1918 will not have been in vain.

Advice To The Lovelorn

22-Year-Old Girl Wants To Be More Than Sister To War Veteran

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I am 22 and have known a boy now 23 for almost nine years. Our families have always been the best of friends. I have always liked him a lot and for the last two or three years have been desperately in love with him. We have the same background and religion and everything in common. We both have a wonderful sense of humor and get along beautifully. However, all these years he has treated me just like a sister. He was in the Army overseas for a year, and we corresponded faithfully and he sent me his pin.

My hopes began to soar, but when he returned, he still treated me like a sister.

How can I make him think of me as other than that? In other words, how can I get him to propose? Do you think I should let him know how I feel about it or not? I am getting slowly impatient with him.

Dear "Ginnie":
No, I don't think you had better
let this young man know how you feel about him or that you are impatiently waiting for him to wake up and think of you as you would like him to do. You had better adopt more subtle methods than that, or you may scare him off.

It is quite logical that if his family and yours have always been friends, he could look upon you more as a sister than a girl friend, and, of course, you have to realize that that may be the way he is always going to look at you.

I think perhaps if you gave him a chance to miss you a little, that might make him stop and think, if he is ever going to. For instance, don't always be ready and waiting for him to ask you to go out with him, but let him occasionally find when he drops around, that you have gone out with other dates. If he suddenly realizes that you're not just where he can always get at you, it may give him a different slant on his relationship to you.

Legislative Record Marred By Inconsistency

The special meeting of the Maryland General Assembly, which adjourned late Saturday night after being in session from Wednesday afternoon, performed some worthwhile service, generally speaking, but left one blotch of inconsistency on its slate to mar its record.

It enacted a bill to give Baltimore City additional taxing powers to overcome threatened financial chaos; it pushed through two important measures to provide funds, in the total of $1,700,000, for flood control for Cumberland; it corrected a mistake made in the regular session last January by reenacting a clarified bill, known as the Strip Mining measure; a repealed adoption law for Allegany county was returned to the statute books, and it eased, to a small degree, the unpopular sales tax law by moving up exemptions to 14 cents from its original 9 cents.

The Baltimore taxing measure, the Allegany county and City of Cumberland flood protection legislation, the strip mining bill, the adoption measure, and the amended sales tax legislation were all of an emergency nature—the prime purpose for which the General Assembly was called. It upheld its ruling that only emergency legislation would be considered by rejecting the bill calling for an increase in salaries for the Mayor and City Commissioners of Cumberland, because a salary-increase measure will be submitted to the voters next March as provided for in a bill passed at the regular session last Spring.

But—and this is where it displayed its inconsistency—it passed a measure providing for the sale of liquor on Sundays in licensed clubs in Allegany County. It could not, by any stretch of the imagination be classed as emergency legislation. There can be no justification cited for its introduction at this special session.

Senator Kimble and members of the Allegany county delegation should have realized it was a controversial matter of top ranking and, if they had, should have put off all efforts to enact it until the regular session in 1949 when ample opportunity could have been given those favoring and opposing it to be heard.

But, so firmly convinced was Governor Lane that the measure had no place on the agenda of the special session, and in the face of the deluge of protests from church people, the Frostburg Mayor and City Council and the Jaycees of the Mountain City, he vetoed it without ceremony.

For that action, a vast majority of the people of this county will be grateful. Even those who might wish for such legislation will, undoubtedly, support the contention that unfair advantage had been taken of the public in seeking such privileges during the brief special session.

Senator Kimble had a change of heart on the matter and urged Mr. Lane to kill it. It is regrettable that he offered the bill in the first place without first making known his intentions far enough in advance to permit views to be expressed. The Allegany County Liquor Dealers' Association made a similar request to Governor Lane, thereby offering further evidence that it favors necessary restrictions to keep the handling and sale of alcoholic beverages in this county on a high level.

Relations with Russia may be strained, but the point hasn't been reached at which this country begins shipping them scrap iron, as it did Japan.

Two Minutes Of Silence At Eleven O'Clock Today

Two minutes of silence at 11. As a long, bloody conflict came to its sudden end 29 years ago, doctors in a military hospital in a little German town studied the case of a shell-shocked corporal and debated whether to send him to a mental institution. They finally released the melancholy corporal as fit, and Adolf Hitler walked out into the gloomy day.

Two minutes of silence at 11. Then the big bells of Verdun cathedral leapt to life to chime out the tidings. American doughboys, led by a drum corps, entered the streets of this town whose name is still the synonym for deathless heroism. Buglers from a French regiment joined them.

A formless, delirious procession it came to be, joined by the townspeople and by pollus from the hospitals who had hobbled out, bringing with them comrades whose faces had been almost shot away.

What was happening in Verdun was reflected in the bonfires of joy that lit the stilled guns of all the long battlefield and was typical of a universal reaction to celebration the like of which the world has never beheld before or since.

The celebrations that followed the ending of World War II were muted in comparison. They were so because the armistice that was signed and celebrated in 1918 as an end to all the hideousness of war had only brought bitter disillusionment.

The sons of the doughboys became the G. I.'s who had marched away to win another and greater war 23 years later.

Two minutes of silence at 11. It is Armistice Day, 1947. No longer an occasion of celebration, it still is a day of unforgettable observance and deepest significance. It is the one anniversary that has emerged from both world wars which still brings most poignantly to the hearts of humble men everywhere the memory and the hope of the deep longing for an assured peace.

The statesmen of the world again are at their council tables. Will they fail a second time?

MacArthur

Emergence of General Douglas MacArthur as a candidate for the Republican nomination for President is the most recent development in the political situation. Long discussed as a possibility, General MacArthur is now receiving powerful journalistic and political support.

His name will be entered in the Wisconsin primary, as will those of Dewey and Stassen. If the general wins the Wisconsin primary, a full-fledged boom may be set off.

MacArthur's strength as a candidate would depend upon to what extent a military hero could capture the fancy of the voters. Party leaders prefer naming a civilian party man, one who has served long and well. But if the convention should become deadlocked and a military hero be regarded the best solution of the dilemma, MacArthur, not Eisenhower, would be the choice.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

THYROID DISTURBANCES

MOST of us are not conscious of our thyroid gland. It is hidden in the neck and does its work quietly without disturbing us in the least. But should it enlarge or become over or underactive, a new experience can be anticipated.

The size of the structure is no index to its efficiency. Some of the most enormous do not affect the health in any way. Occasionally a goiter of this type spreads inwardly and crowds the windpipe or certain nerves in the neck but otherwise the only untoward effect is its appearance. Examination and a breathing test are advised, however, just to make sure, even though the results are frequently as a preventive and sometimes means an enlarged gland smaller. But the only choice is surgery, which is usually done for cosmetic reasons.

When the thyroid produces an excess of its secretion, additional heat is created which burns the tissues more rapidly than usual. The appetite increases but weight loss continues. The skin is warm, and the individual is uncomfortable on torrid days and wears less clothing than the average person during the winter. The hands and tongue tremble and the victim becomes more nervous and irritable as the days go by. The eyes are prominent; in some they appear to be staring and in others they actually protrude from the socket.

The problem is solved by surgery but in the last few years a new drug, propylthiouracil, has proved to be an effective medical treatment. The preparation cannot be used in every one but this is for the physician to decide.

A sluggish thyroid has the opposite effect. When the condition is severe, a group of symptoms follows that cannot be mistaken for anything else. This is the classical myxedema in which weight is gained in spite of meager meals. All of the body processes are slowed; the tissues become waterlogged so that the eyelids and face look rounded and puffy.

The voice is croaky and the skin and hair are dry. Menstrual irregularities and constipation are common and the mental faculties are depressed. The heart may enlarge while its output is decreased. A meabolism test will reveal a low reading; in many instances it will register minus 40.

But this is the extreme case, when the gland is only partially affected, symptoms are not pronounced. Some of these individuals tire easily and cannot understand why they have so little pep. Others complain of dryness of the skin and scalp or the fact they cannot keep a slim figure even though they eat like a sparrow. The true state of affairs becomes evident after doing a metabolism test. It is usually between 20 and 30 below normal. Furthermore, the amount of cholesterol in the blood is elevated. To make up for deficit in this secretion, thyroid tablets or capsules are recommended. The results are often dramatic especially when the diagnosis has been made correctly.

LEG PULSE

R. L. writes: What causes a queer sensation of a beat when the legs are crossed?

REPLY

This is probably due to pressure on a blood vessel. Because of the fact that it is squeezed a noticeable pulsation is evident.

RETINAL DISTURBANCE

A. E. writes: What is meant by hemorrhage back of the eyeball? What causes it and can it damage the eyesight?

REPLY

You probably refer to a hemorrhage from a vessel in the retina. Rupture of one of these structures impairs vision. There are many causes, including injuries to the eye, inflammation of the blood vessels in this area, and circulatory disturbances. Now and then hemorrhage occurs in the presence of hypertension, anemia, or systemic disease.

HOLLOW CHESTED

S. R. G. writes: Is there any way to straighten out a slightly invaginated chest?

REPLY

This rarely if ever requires treatment and is never recommended solely for cosmetic purposes. When the chest is indented to such an extent that it presses upon the heart, the breastbone can be removed but this is a most unusual complication.

It Says Here

By BOB ROPE

I just finished taking part in the Will Rogers Memorial program at Claremore, Okla. Oklahoma, that's Texas with less bull and more oil. I flew in from Hollywood and it took us quite a while. The pilot had a sideline racket and he kept misspelling the name of the soft drink.

But the people gave me a wonderful reception at the airport. As soon as I stepped off the plane they lifted me to their shoulders. I had a swelled head until they walked under the propeller.

Petrillo happened to be in town also. He was trying to collect some dues. He'd just found out the oil companies use drums.

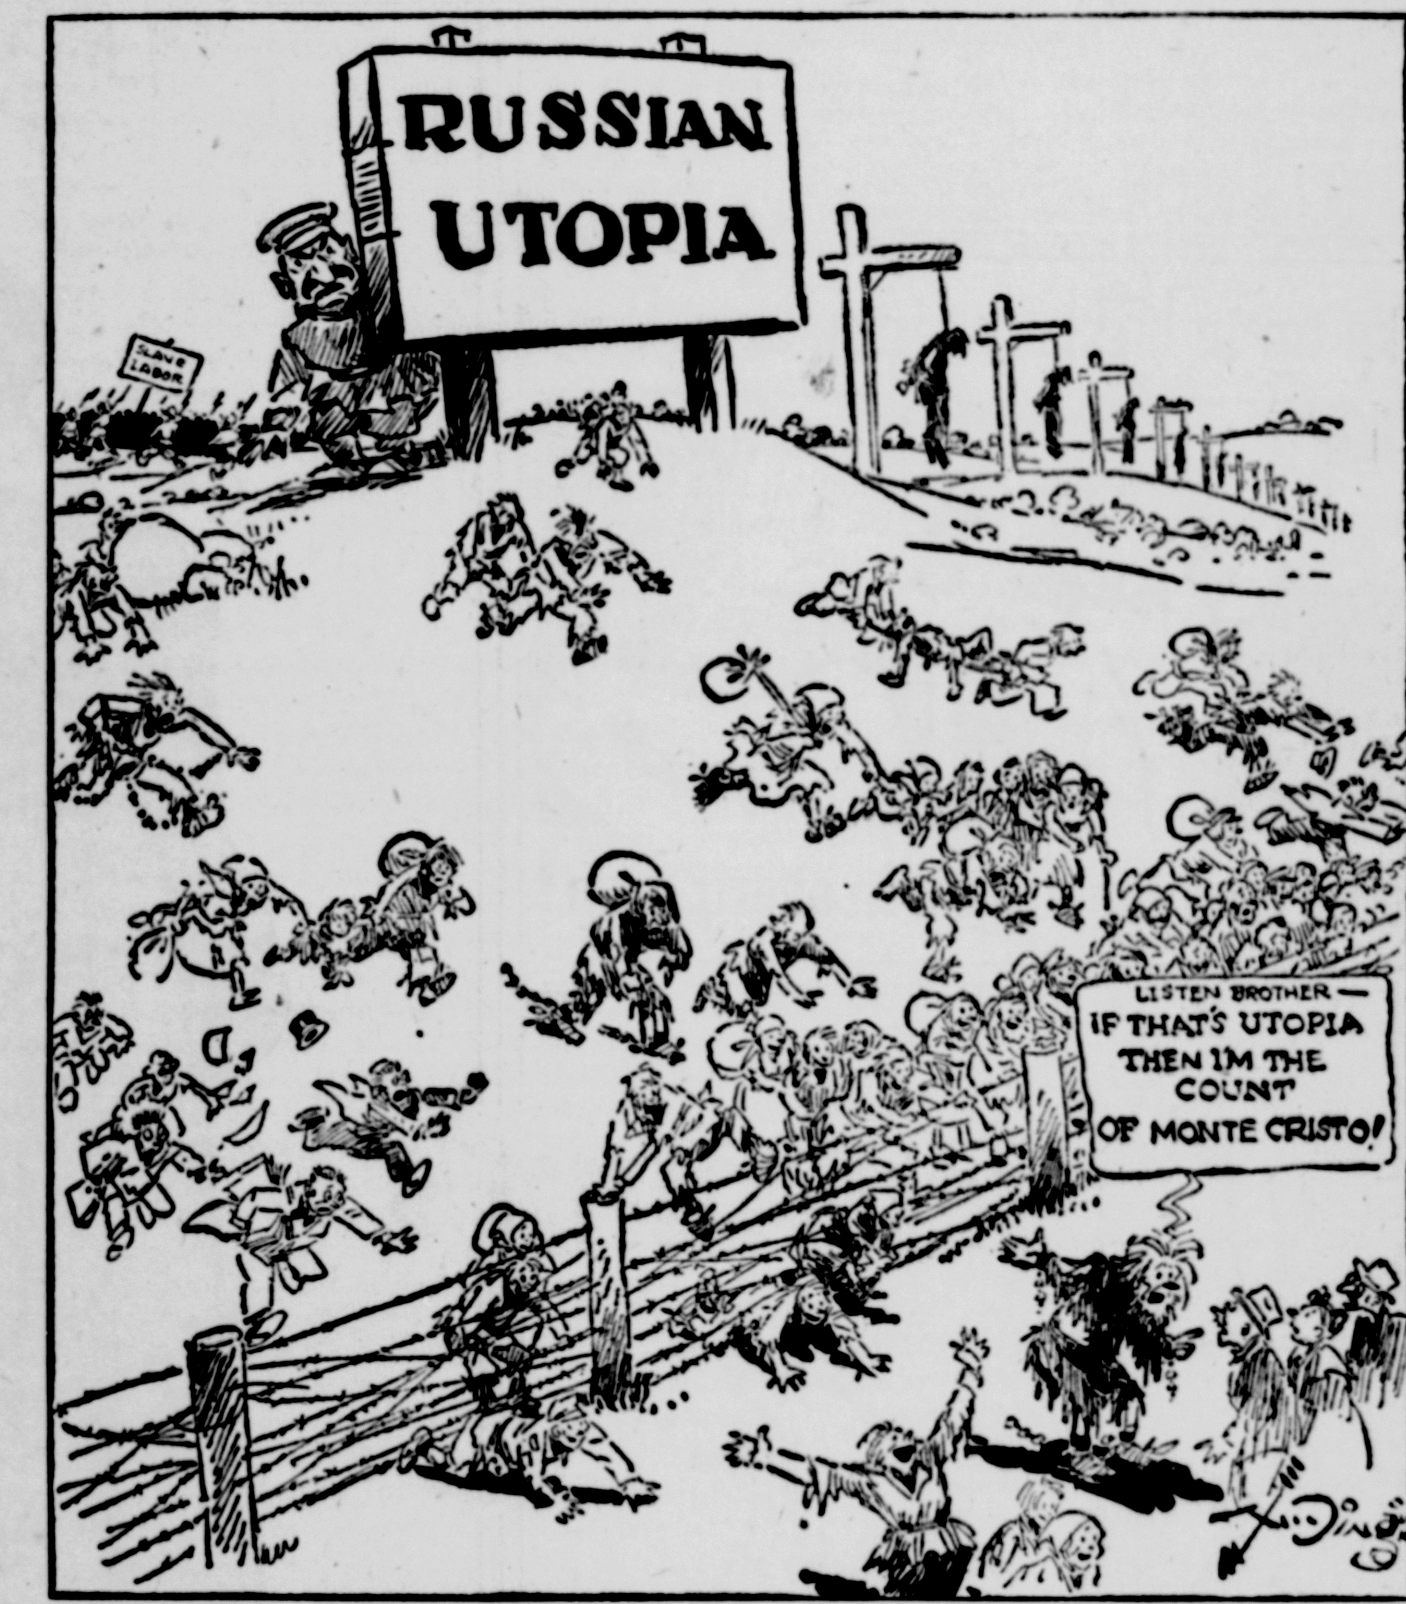

Everybody there is in the oil business. I met one Indian oil millionaire. He's so rich he lives in a milk wigwag.

And when the waitress in the hotel served me, she said "what do you want with your coffee, cream or oil?" I took oil. I didn't want her to think I was a tourist.

But it's no wonder they're oil-conscious. The oil is so near the surface of the ground they have to take precautions. I saw a girl walking down the street in high heels and the crowd had two guys following her with corks.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Cool, Calculating Governor Warren—A Trained Public Servant—May Get GOP 1948 Nomination In Case Of Convention Deadlock

Says DREW PEARSON

(Editor's note: Drew Pearson today wears the brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round to Governor Earl Warren of California, who is accompanying him on the Friendship Train.)

ABOARD THE FRIENDSHIP TRAIN, Nov. 10—If the Republican National Convention, seven short months hence, runs into a deadlock between Senator Taft and Governor Dewey, then a lot of Republicans may want to have a careful look at the presidential possibilities of a tall, tousle-haired gentleman who is now Governor of California.

And if enough Republicans decide that the country won't go for a military man in the White House—then Earl Warren, a MacArthur—then Earl Warren, by all odds, would be their best bet as Republican candidate for President.

As you get to know Warren, you can understand why so many Democrats voted for him in 1942—so many, in fact, that when Warren was asked to explain how he was able to carry all California's 58 counties, he replied: "I did it with Democrats."

Some 400,000 Democrats voted for Warren the first time he ran for Governor in 1942. But by the time he was up for reelection in 1946, the Democrats were so strong for him that they nominated him on their ticket. He ran both as a Democrat and a Republican—which meant, of course, that he didn't have to bother about running at all. He simply walked into office.

Probably one reason for Governor Warren's fairly liberal policies is the fact that his father was a master carpenter who got fired during a railroad strike. His father not only was fired, but lost his home—and had to move from Los Angeles to look for new work in Bakersfield, Calif.

Labels Deserve Like Warren
Warren has always carried a card in the Musicians' Union as a result of a clarinet-playing job he once had in the Bakersfield Band. However, it has never won him any real labor friends. In fact, the unions generally consider him an enemy and the tool of the big California interests.

As far as this writer can gauge the situation, however, Warren has called his shots pretty much as they came. He has teamed up with neither one side nor the other. If he can be accused of anything, it is of being a cool and calculated middle-of-the-roader.

When it has come to political appointments, for instance, Warren has chosen from the Democrats as well as the Republicans. And his appointments on the whole have been good. On foreign affairs, he has never stuck his neck out either as an isolationist or an interventionist, though the isolationists claim him as one of their own. Though he was dead opposed to Japanese-Americans ever returning to the West Coast, he made a vigorous appeal to Californians to protect the Japs when the War Department finally decided they should come back to their homes.

Warren has six children and, like many men in public life, a wife who is much more conservative than he. He has also joined about every organization it's possible to join in the State of California.

Looking over his career, you are struck with the fact that most of it has been spent at exactly the same kind of work that aroused so much Republican criticism of Washington—being a bureaucrat.

After Warren worked his way through college and law school as a farmhand and freight loader, he got a job as Deputy City Attorney for Alameda County, just across the Bay from San Francisco. That was nearly 30 years ago.

And he has been what Republicans would call a bureaucrat ever since.

Trained Public Servant
This columnist, however, is not one who believes that the dedication of one's life to public service should be the object of derision. If the nation had more trained public servants such as Warren, we would be much better off.

Warren was promoted from Deputy City Attorney to be Chief City Attorney, then was elected District Attorney of Alameda County, where he proceeded to attack the Ku Klux Klan, clean out gamblers, purge the racketeers and even kicked the Mayor of Oakland and most of the Oakland City Council out of office.

In fact, Warren did such a good job as District Attorney for 17 years that he stepped from that job to become Attorney General of the State in 1938, even at a time when the Democrats elected a Governor for the first time in 40 years. And, four years later, it was only natural for him to go one step higher into the Governor's chair.

Warren has made it quite clear he is not a candidate for Vice President and he has made no effort to put himself forward for the Presidency. Friends say his real ambition is to be Attorney General of the United States. Come June in Philadelphia, however, with the Republicans facing a serious deadlock, Earl Warren may be just the kind of new blood the party needs to arouse latent electoral enthusiasm.

Merry-Go-Round

President Truman solemnly warned the Civil Service Commission the other day to keep a close watch over the new loyalty board and make sure it does not develop into an inquisition. Calling the three Commissioners to the White House, he said: "I want to catch the Communists. But I don't want this to develop into a witch hunt." Republican economy seekers might look into the fact that Senators have their own private elevator in the Capitol, operating full time though Congress is not in session. It makes only three or four trips a day, piloted by a $3,300-per-year operator who directly across the hall, a public elevator is overcrowded with tourists, reporters and capitol employees.

G. O. P. Not To Tie Hands Of Government On European Aid

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 — The committee of 19 distinguished American citizens advising Secretary of Commerce Harriman on the program of aid to Europe made, for the most part, a splendid report but it will not satisfy American public opinion on one essential point—namely, what assurances will be insisted upon that the money will be effectively spent?

Unfortunately, the Harriman committee practically passes this with the same old worn-out doctrine of "nonintervention" in foreign states that has been the bane of American realists every time they are asked to put up their dollars and their resources to help another country.

Evidently, to get unanimity, compromise language was adopted. Thus the Harriman committee deliberately abandons any insistence on the free-enterprise system in the operation of the Marshall Plan. Whether this was done to cater to the views of socialist governments abroad or to satisfy the so-called liberals in America, it will not satisfy the conservatives who must be reckoned with if "operation rat-hole," as the Marshall Plan is called by its critics, is not to materialize.

Calls For More Care
The principle of aid to Europe is sound but the expenditure of from $12 to $17 billions from the U. S. Treasury calls for a little more care than the Harriman committee was apparently willing to give to the method of spending such an enormous sum.

While the committee calls for the creation by Congress of the fund to European governments and for production goals and for piecemeal aid so a check can be maintained concurrently on what will be done with the money, the fact remains that the goods and funds will be handed over to some governments in which the vast body of American business men have not the slightest confidence.

First and foremost is the debacle of British production to date. Evidence piles up that the labor government in Britain has accumulated more persons on the public payroll or its bureaucracy in proportion to population than any democracy has ever had in peacetime. The nationalization or government-ownership program in Britain has shattered the production of coal and the American people are about to be taxed to pay the deficit in coal production.

The Harriman committee surrendered to an obsolete sense of diplomatic nicety when it refused to stand up for the free-enterprise system as the prerequisite to extension of American aid. Most observers coming back from Europe are convinced that Britain's effort to extend her socialist practices to the Ruhr will ruin that area's coal production too, as it has Britain's.

Surrender of American Principle

Here is the paragraph in the Harriman committee report which many conservatives will point to as a regrettable surrender of American principle:

"Aid from this country should not be conditioned on the methods used to reach these goals, so long as they are consistent with basic democratic principles. Continued adherence to such principles is an essential condition to continued aid but this condition should not require adherence to any form of economic organization or the abandonment of plans adopted in and carried out in a free and democratic way. While this committee firmly believes that the American system of free enterprise is the best method of obtaining high productivity, it does not believe that any foreign-aid program should be used as a means of requiring other countries to adopt it. The imposition of any such conditions would constitute an unwarranted interference with the internal affairs of friendly nations."

The foreign-aid program presumably is a business matter and proper business methods should be used to carry it out. The American free-enterprise system is admittedly the best method to get high productivity and yet the Harriman committee is willing to acquiesce in methods which it knows in its heart will not get the desired productivity.

It is safe to say the Republican Party in Congress which represents common-sense conservatism will not agree to a scheme which ties the hands of the American government and denies it a voice in what methods shall be used in applying the money or goods sent abroad. This would be unprecedented, of course. But the appropriation of from $12 billions to $17 billions of American taxpayers' money in time of peace is also unprecedented. Extraordinary crises call for extraordinary measures.

Truman's Group On Foreign Aid Held Complete, Final Word

By MARK SULLIVAN

Both as to facts and conclusions, the report of President Truman's Committee on Foreign Aid is the complete and final word. No more is needed by a people seeking light and guidance on an immense and complex problem. And the report contains everything that is needed as it moves toward judgment about methods, which is the only important field that remains open.

This report answers the questions that our people have been asking about all aspects of our aid to Europe, ever since Secretary Marshall laid the situation before them in his speech at Harvard University last June. As an approach to answering the questions, the Committee itself begins by asking them. It does this in a summary of the clarity and simplicity of which is one of the testimony of the Committee's quality.

"1. Why should the United States furnish aid? 2. Why do the European nations need help? 3. How much money and what kind of goods can we safely and wisely furnish? 4. How can such a program be financed and administered? 5. What will be the impact of such a program on our economy?"

Answers Complete and Detailed
The Committee's answers are complete and detailed and, this quality calls for emphasis, candid. The candor is illustrated by the manner in which the Committee states the one of the reasons for our aid to Europe that lies in the threat of Russia to us. This threat is stated in words that are plain but without deliberate provocative intent; provocation is there, but it lies in the facts, it is not evoked by this Committee's words:

"Open ideological war has been declared already . . . It has been called a cold war . . . It is cold only in the sense that guns are not smoking and bombs . . . not exploding. In every other sense, the ideological war of the Communists is as ruthless and as determined a drive to achieve world domination as a hot war."

To single out this quotation, from a report that is a hundred thousand words long may be a distortion. The Committee itself does not emphasize it. The Committee is stating the several reasons we should give aid to Europe, and one of these is to make those countries economically self-sufficient, to the end that they be able to resist susceptibility to Communism and threat of Russian domination. To those countries, aid from us is a means to preserve economic strength and political independence.

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

TO GOVERNMENTS which control their press, the American foreign correspondent is a general nuisance. Such governments are accustomed to hand their own press such releases as they desire to have published and no other stories appear. Such a press is an adjunct of government and really exists to suppress the truth.

The American foreign correspondent builds his personal career by finding the facts for himself. He tries to see politicians who do not wish to see him; he hunts out the opposition leaders and asks embarrassing questions; he tries to know how a people actually lives; he pries into statistics.

This is the nature of the American animal, whether he be right or left or just in between.

Most of all, he likes to watch the functioning of his own government abroad, and what he discovers he usually writes about sooner or later. Sometimes he is a vis-a-vis; that is, he avoids sharp criticism so that he may be permitted to remain in the foreign country or return to it after he has had a spell away from it.

Many of our correspondents to Soviet Russia have been accused of being vis-a-vises. But lots of them, after they have left the country, have published magazine articles and books which provided a more accurate picture of that country, its government and its people than their day-by-day reports.

The Russians and their satellites are expelling American correspondents. This is an old process not only with Soviet Russia but with other countries which have consciously sought to discourage the inquiring reporter and to cultivate the man or woman who is intellectually, emotionally or cravenly favorably disposed. Some men like to live in certain countries and that proves advantageous to the government that can, at any moment, order their passports taken up. The expulsion of Arthur M. Brandel, of the "New York Times," and his wife, Mary Lester, of the United Press, by Yugoslavia is not as unusual as it may seem except that they actually got into Yugoslavia.

Many foreign correspondents are not even permitted to proceed to their posts.

The American newspaper reader does not want safe correspondents, men and women who behave as governments wish them to. They want prying Toms, fellows who get below the surface to unearth the story that the official wants hidden. A newspaper man must assume that all government information officers are, by the nature of their calling, professional liars often enough to justify the assumption that what they tell must be carefully scrutinized. Our own government has been notorious for its false press information for 15 years.

The reader is more protected by the many reporters who sometimes get a little twisted than by the good boy who repeats what some official tells him and is gently patted on the head of some stuffed shirt.

This country ought to adopt a policy that when an American correspondent is thrown out of a country in line of duty, all correspondents from that country should be expelled from the United States. We have the complicity of course, of the United Nations which would make it possible for these correspondents to get themselves assigned

To us, likewise, it is a means to achieve, in the Committee's words, "the survival of the American system of free enterprise." It is a means also to preserve our political independence, for a Europe submerged by Communism and under Russian domination would be a direct threat to us.

In addition to what may be called, if we are to be completely frank, the military reason for our aid to Europe, which the Committee does not unduly stress, the other reasons are stated, with similar length and thoroughness. "A progressive decline is the pricing and buying power of 270 million people in Western and Central Europe would have a terrific impact on American prosperity." Further, lack of aid from us "would force European countries to resort to governmental monopoly."

... the resulting system of state controls "would by their widening operations, 'endanger the survival of the American system of free enterprise.'"

Inflation Can Be Dealt With
Further evidence of the Committee's candor is its admission that shipments of scarce goods, especially food, to Europe would "add to the inflationary pressures at home." The Committee, however, says that the threat of inflation can be dealt with. It expressly says that it does not itself deal with domestic inflation, further than to say what candid calls for, that "the immediate economic danger to the United States is inflation."

One wishes this Committee would now take up inflation. A strong and cheering impression made by this report is the capacity of America to find men to deal with immensely vast and complex national questions in a manner utterly free from political ideology. The Committee is, in its own words, "a public rather than a governmental body." Its range of economic thought embraces its chairman, Mr. Averill Harriman, who as Secretary of Commerce is a symbol of conservatism; and former Wisconsin Senator Robert M. La Follette, the expert on true American liberalism that resists totalitarian economy or government. A strong characteristic of this Committee is its freedom from any bureaucratic point of view. As many as fifty times the report emphasizes that foreign aid should be administered within a framework set up by Congress, that the administration should be worked out with Congress, and that policies of administration should be satisfactory to Congress.

to UN and live in the USA. We might, however, force them to stay somewhere near Lake Success, under police guard, to make sure they never set foot on American soil except such soil as has been polluted by extraterritoriality. These boys could then devote their waking hours talking to each other but seeing not a flicker of a New York light. It would do them good.

Certainly the American press could with dignity boycott any country that mistreats an American correspondent. What would Vishinsky be worth to Soviet Russia if not a newspaper in the land, except the hired Russian ones, printed his speeches?

He is here for propaganda on the American mind, to frighten our people, to break their spirit.

Suppose not a newspaper gave him a line until American correspondents were free to ply their trade. American-fashioned behind the Iron Curtain—what would happen to Vishinsky? He would probably be purged as a failure.

Today's Talk

Trains
Many have written of the railroads as "the arteries of the nation." And well may they be thus spoken of, for they make up the life stream of a nation. But there are two trains that merit our consideration and admiration. First, the Freedom Train, which is now on its way to New York, loaded with food, the gift of the people along the way for the hungry of Europe, for which the railroad owners have generously donated box cars.

Can you think of any other nation running Freedom and Friendship trains? This, at least, cannot be termed "war mongering!" I have ridden from Halifax to Vancouver, in Canada, and from New York to San Francisco, in the United States, and it is an inspiration to pass through territory that is free, and where Opportunity knocks at almost every mile of the way. Little way stations, towns, cities, and great areas of fertile land being cultivated by industrious people and great factories teeming with activity. Rich America, indeed—and generous, too.

Moving, ever moving, are these trains, day and night. Passenger trains, freight trains, and often mercy trains—carriers and distributors. Across deserts, through tunnels, over mountains, through valleys, own back as a forth, these trains tend their errands. Builders of communities and states are these busy trains.

Billions of dollars have been poured, lavishly, into the better transportation systems of the continent. Men like Robert Young, for example, and many others, are alive to the demands of people who look to the trains for better comfort and efficiency during their long days and nights away from home and business. The "train for tomorrow" is being perfected for today!

Railroad executives are more sensitive to the voice of those who travel, than ever before. They welcome suggestions for improvement. Never have they been so alive to the needs of their passengers. More of that "public be trimmed" policy! More power to them!

Congressman Thomas notwithstanding, I feel pretty good about Hollywood today. I saw "Gentleman's Agreement" last night. I think this movie is more important to our way of life than Thomas and all the members of his Un-American Activities Committee.

And don't start pointing that manicured finger at me. I don't think even Congressman Thomas would be chump enough to accuse me of being a Communist. If the gentlemen reads my column, he knows where

I stand. And if he doesn't, I'll be glad to send him a packing case full of letters in which the comrades attack me as "a pint-sized Pegler."

"Gentleman's Agreement" is a hot, angry movie about bigotry in America. It's the second time this year that the flicker factories have had the guts to say something important. "Crossfire," the Dore Schary movie, was the first. In 10,000 feet of celluloid that burned holes in the screen, it told a story of racial hatred in what could be any American town, Anno Domini 1947. I think "Gentleman's Agreement" hits even harder than "Crossfire." I'm not going to try to review it—I don't know how to put that kind of excitement on paper. Besides, I don't think the picture needs my four stars. It's my hunch the film critics will dip deep into their adjective bags when they discuss Darryl Zanuck's showmanship, Moss Hart's moving and mature treatment of the Laura Hobson book, Elia Kazan's direction, and the edge-of-the-seat performance of John Garfield, Dorothy McGuire and Gregory Peck.

The Thomas Committee did some mumbling about "Crossfire." If it decides to investigate "Gentleman's Agreement," it might not be a bad idea to investigate the Thomas Committee.

And let's get this straight. I'm a hundred-and-ten per cent for driving everybody out of the movies who takes his orders from a foreign government. And if you want to pass a law to break a few legs as going-away presents, I'm for that too. But—and this is a big But—I want all the cards face-up on the table. If a man is accused of being a traitor, I want that man to have a decent chance to talk back. I want his guilt established with evidence and witnesses, rather than Kleig lights and hoopla. Even when you're trying someone I despise, I want no part of the star-chamber methods of Hitler and the fake trial techniques of Stalin.

The Thomas Committee put a couple of ex-FBI agents on the stand and tried to create the impression that John Edgar Hoover and his boys were back of the evidence. I just got off the telephone after talking to L. B. Nichols, Hoover's assistant at the FBI offices in Washington. He told me the FBI had nothing to do with the Thomas investigation. It was strictly a Congressional show.

I wonder how much Thomas and his committee really know about the importance of writers in Hollywood. I know dozens of these writers—from a $100-a-week junior on the Paramount lot to the $1,000-a-day Ben Hecht. A Hollywood writer works under a contract which has a dozen clauses in small type giving the bossman the right to change, alter, eliminate and substitute—even junk the finished script, if he feels like it, and send for other writers. Unlike Broadway dramatists, not a single writer on the West Coast has anything to say about the final product which hits the screen. When the story has been filmed, the bossman can cut the picture anyway they please.

Well, let's have a look at these bossmen. Louis B. Meyer of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, for instance. The last time I talked to Mr. Meyer I got the impression he thought Herbert Hoover was a little too far left of center. The Brothers Warner? Middle-of-the-road guys, and a mighty fast men with a buck any time you approach them with a project which has a little Jeffersonian Democracy in it. Barne Balaban, president of Paramount? For months Mr. B. has been playing hookey from his job, helping the State Department promote the Freedom Train. H.K.O.—who owns most of the stock? A Wall Street gent named Floyd Odlum. Who owns most of 20th Century-Fox? The Massachusetts Investment Trust and Lehman Brothers. And as for Universal, Cheever Cowdin, its chairman, probably thinks even Louis B. Meyer is a little too far left of center.

These are the men who really call the shots in the movie business. And make no mistake about it—they'd sooner hack off their own cheek-writing fingers than let Communist propaganda into their films.

On the strength of testimony by a few movie people who are not exactly right guys in my book, a lot of ticket buyers may get the impression that Hollywood is taking orders from the Kremlin. Well, I hope Joe Customer is too smart of fall for this malarky. Our fourth largest industry is built on public

Memorial Auxiliary Plans To Sponsor Card Party

Affair For General, Scholarship Funds

The Memorial Hospital Auxiliary had its annual luncheon meeting yesterday at the Elks Club with Mrs. Frank U. Davis, presiding. Plans were formulated for a large card party to raise money for the general fund and to add to the scholarship fund. The tentative date for the party is the latter part of January.

It was announced that under the scholarship fund the auxiliary is sponsoring the graduate work of one girl, who left last summer for the University of Pittsburgh. The scholarship project was inaugurated by the auxiliary last spring, when the group voted to "sponsor a scholarship for a summer course in graduate work at an out of town hospital." The student was recommended by Miss Francis Loftus, superintendent of nurses at Memorial. The recommendation is made on scholastic ability and being most worthy of receiving the scholarship.

Others taking office with Mrs. Davis were Mrs. Walter C. Capper, first vice-president; Mrs. William A. Gunter, second vice-president; Mrs. Norman Goldblatt, secretary; Mrs. Emma Everstine, treasurer and Mrs. Joseph Lichenstein, financial secretary.

Five new members were welcomed into the auxiliary. They are Mrs. Arthur C. Bright, Mrs. Norman Wallace, Mrs. Louis Curl, Mrs. John Deets and Mrs. James Bishop.

Various chairmen gave their reports. They included Mrs. Howard H. Dickey, Jr., Mrs. Morton Peskin, Mrs. Hammond Amick, Mrs. Irving Millerson, Mrs. William M. Somerville, Miss Elizabeth Dixon, Mrs. Irving Rosenbaum, and Mrs. S. G. Wiseman.

It was announced that the Thanksgiving holiday will be marked in some way on the trays of the patients at the hospital.

The tapir of tropical countries is allied to the horse and rhinoceros. The family includes only five living species two being found in South America, two in Central America, and one in the Malayan region.

Minister To Head Co-operative Group

Rev. Richard H. Bready, vice chairman of the local Progressive Citizens of America group, was elected chairman of the Western Maryland Co-operative Committee at an organization meeting held last night at the Cumberland Free Public Library.

The group was instituted several weeks ago by the PCA. Twenty-five persons attended the meeting. Other officers are Mrs. Eva Williams, vice chairman; Miss Madan Topson, secretary; and Mrs. Evelyn Coleman, treasurer. Miss Topson is president of the Cumberland branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; and Mrs. Coleman represents the Retail Clerks Union.

Five trustees named to serve on the executive board are Charles Harding of the Machinists Union; John F. Chisholm of the Rubber Workers Union; Roy Craze of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America; Jean N. Bourcel of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; and A. R. Rizer of the Blacksmiths Union.

The committee approved two objectives for a co-operative plan of defeating high prices. The first project, which the executive board will start working on immediately, is the wholesale purchase of groceries and distribution of the food to members of participating organizations on a non-profit basis.

The date of the next meeting will depend upon the length of time needed by the executive committee to prepare a report. The second project is the establishment of a standard co-operative store for the sale of foods at cost.

District Foresters To Get Remote Radio

The Western Maryland Forest District will soon have radio contact with all districts in the state, according to William A. Parr, district forester, who said a remote control station is being installed in the Dan's Mountain lookout tower.

At present there is a transmitter in the district office, located in the Allegheny County Court House building and one on Dan's Mountain. Parr said, but the office transmitter is restricted in the contacts it can make.

The location of a remote control set at the tower, will permit direct contact with all sections of the district as well as with other districts in the state, he explained, and will not require keeping a man at the tower to relay messages as has been done in the past.

Completion of installation is expected before the forest fire season, Parr said, adding that it may be completed well before that time.

Notre Dame Strengthens Top Grid Team Position

Sports Writers Rank Irish Among Greatest

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP)—Notre Dame strengthened its position as the No. 1 college football team of the country by its convincing burst of power against Army according to most of the 169 writers participating in the weekly Associated Press poll.

Approximately 69 per cent of the voting sports writers ranked the Fighting Irish atop the field with 117 of the 169 ballots. A week ago they had drawn 106 firsts out of 166.

Flash Steady Ground Game
Supposed to be strictly a passing team with an offense leaning heavily on Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame flashed a steady ground game that turned the Army flanks time and again for long gains.

Some veteran writers who have been watching football for many seasons ranked the Notre Dame club as the best they ever saw.

Many compared them with the great Irish clubs of other years. Despite a hoop-la surrounding the last meeting of the Cadets and Irish in the current series, Michigan attracted 34 first places votes for its 35-0 romp through Indiana.

Wolverines Face Test
The Wolverines, who led the pool during early season, head toward one of the toughest contests of their perfect record Saturday when they face an improving Wisconsin team which rocketed into first place by a 46-14 rout of Iowa.

Pennsylvania nosed out Southern Methodist for third place although both continued unbeaten and untied by respective wins over previously undefeated Virginia and the sub-par Texas Aggies.

Seven writers tabbed the Penn eleven for first place after its 19-7 conquest of Virginia while two liked SMU for the No. 1 spot off its 13-0 win over the Aggies.

The Quesada text-to-tote hurdle Saturday when they entertain a subdued Army team which dropped out of the first 10 for the first time in years. The Cadets were ranked 13th.

USC Remains In Fifth
Southern California, 14-0 victors over stubborn Stanford, clung to fifth place and drew five first place votes while Georgia Tech continued in sixth position despite its loss call against Navy 16-14.

The Engineers' clash with Alabama figures to be the best game in the south this week. Texas surged into seventh, pushing unbeaten-untied Penn State to eighth. The Longhorns thumped Baylor 28-7. Penn State which had to go hard in the mud to stop Temple, 7-0, faces trouble ahead in Navy Saturday.

Wisconsin made the top 10 for the first time this season and has a chance to graduate into the higher regions if it can upset Michigan. California regained 10th place when Virginia sunk into the second division by bowing to Penn after a close battle.

ND Tallies 1,612 Points
On the basis of point score, Notre Dame had 1,612 to Michigan's 528 and the next club, Penn, was over 300 points behind.

The second ten:
Eleven, Illinois, 97; 12, William and Mary, 85; 13, Army, 64; 14, Alabama, 61; 15 and 16, Virginia and Mississippi, tied, 46; 17, Missouri, 28; 18, Utah, 36; 19, North Carolina, 33; 20, Minnesota, 32.

Others receiving votes were Columbia, 25; Kentucky, 22; Kansas, 1; Mississippi State, 16; Wake Forest, 15; UCLA, 10; Maryland, 9; Villanova, 5; South Carolina, 4; Vanderbilt and Wesleyan each 3; Boston College, Princeton, Rutgers and Purdue, each 2; Georgia, Trinity, Navy and Rice, each 1.

Pro Tennis Contract Is Said Signed By Kramer
CHICAGO, Nov. 10 (AP)—Professional tennis promoter Jack Harris said today he would make an "important" announcement Wednesday, presumably that world amateur champion Jack Kramer has signed a professional tour with Bobby Riggs, king of the pro ranks.

Madison Square Garden last Saturday apparently let the cat out of Harris' bag by disclosing that Kramer and Riggs were booked for a professional match there on Dec. 26.

Penn Tops Lambert Trophy Rating List
NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP)—Penn, unbeaten leader in the Ivy League, tops the list in the Lambert Trophy ratings today with a two-point bulge on Penn State, second place club. The trophy is emblematic of college football supremacy in the east.

Barton High Will Tangle With State Soccer Opponents
Barton High will tangle with Williamsport High, Washington County victors in the Class "D" finals, on the Hancock athletic field.

Williamsport walloped Walkersville of Frederick County, 10-0 to gain the right to meet the Allegany County champions.

Barton, coming back into prominence on the soccer field after the war under the excellent tutelage of Mentor Paul Footen, whipped Grantsville 5-2 last Thursday to win the right to enter the finals.

Coach Eddie Finzel's Beall High, Frostburg, Western Maryland Interscholastic League champions tripped Frederick 7-0 to take District No. 1 honors in the Class "A" section of the soccer race.

Final scheduling for the inter-district games between Beall, Bladensburg, and Glen Burnie will be made at a meeting in Baltimore, tomorrow at 4 o'clock, the association stated.

Bladensburg, Prince George County, topped the District No. 2 Class "A" title and Glen Burnie, Anne Arundel County, was the victor for District No. 3.

He played football while in the service, splitting his work between Georgia Pre-Flight and North Carolina Pre-Flight.

Sanders first was scouted and signed by the Washington Redskins with Ray Flaherty, former Redskin coach, and present Yankee coach, handling the contracts.

Lujack and Connor of Notre Dame... Bednarik of Penn... Prohlik of Yale and Steffy of Army... Swilack of Columbia and Poole and Connerly of Mississippi...

Walker of Southern Methodist... Naderhry of Yale... and Minnie of Penn... You could make a pretty good team out of that bunch... but the pros probably could dig up a bunch of unsung lads from small schools who are equally good...

Many a gridiron great is born to run and pass unseen... unless he happens to be in a big college... or has an ace press agent...

Jake Lamotta... the mid-dleweight... who fights Billy Fox... the light heavy... in the Garden Friday... is considered the toughest customer the ring has seen since Mickey Walker hung up the gloves...

Lamotta has fought the best without ever being floored... and it will be interesting to see what the hard-hitting Fox can do with him... but Fox himself has a glass jaw... and Jake might very well stiffen him...

There are no punters around like the fabulous Pat O'Dea... but he wasn't the only one who could boot the ball far in the old days... Marshall Reynolds of Penn back in 1904 punted 80 yards... on the fly... against Columbia...

New York racing ends tomorrow... with all tracks showing decreases both in attendance and betting... but the receipts could fall a lot more... and the tracks would still make money...

Branch Rickey says pressure from religious groups against Leo Durocher will not affect his judgement in selecting the Dodger manager for next year... yeah...

BASEBALL LEADERS MEET—The presidents of Ohio's two major league baseball teams, Bill Veeck, Cleveland, left, and Warren Giles, right, Cincinnati, talk with Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler as the annual Major League Draft meeting opened at Cincinnati yesterday. Twenty-six minor league ball players were chosen in the draft by the sixteen major league teams, costing the owners $245,000.

Yankees, Browns Hold Statistic Lead

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP)—Cleveland and New York, respective western and eastern division leaders in the All-America Football Conference, continued today to share major statistical honors.

The Cleveland Browns, although dropping an average of 13 yards per game after their stiff 13-12 win over surprising Brooklyn, still retained the total offense lead, compiling an average of 375.8 yards per game on the ground and in the air combined.

San Francisco's 49ers were second at 336 and the 49ers' Sunday conquerors, the New Yorkers, were third at 328.5.

The Clevelanders still led in forward passing with 191.6 yards per game, with Baltimore second at 172.9 and Chicago third with 164.7. The Colts passing the rockets on their 274-yard performance last weekend — 255 by Wilson "Bud" Schwenk.

Cleveland yielded to the Yankees in scoring, the latter having made 279 points to the Browns' 276 and Buffalo's 253. The Yanks also took the rushing lead, averaging 199.3 per game, to nose out the erstwhile leader, San Francisco (195.1), with Cleveland third at 184.2.

Defensively, the Yanks predominated, allowing 232.3 yards per game to combined rushing and passing, and yielding only 81.4 on the ground. Cleveland was tops in pass defense, giving up 109.7 yards per game.

Shaw Will Coach

It was announced yesterday that the first Methodist basketball team of the Central YMCA Sunday School League will be coached by Gene Shaw, former Allegheny High All-City captain during the coming hoop campaign.

Shaw stated that the initial practice will be held tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock at the Allegheny High School gym. All candidates for the team are asked to report at this time.

Like so many of the professional stars, Sanders was just another back in college, over-shadowed by a big-name star. That was at the University of Texas, where Jack-rabbit Jack Crain drew the headlines and Sanders the professional eyes.

When the Yankees went into training camp last year Sanders was just another halfback on the squad. When the season was over Sanders was the star of the team, an All-Star selection and the Conference's most successful ball carrier.

SANDERS' play this season has been record-breaking. According to the latest statistics released by the league offices the 196-pound Yankee star is first in rushing, first in scoring, first in punt returns and second in total offense, seventh in forward passing, and third in kickoff returns.

Already he has scored 13 touchdowns for 78 points and appears a sure bet to win this offensive title in a walk. He has carried the ball 118 times and gained 774 yards. He has thrown 111 passes, completing 68 for another 935 yards. He has a 46.4 average in punting, on 27 kicks. He holds the league's season mark for kickoff return with a 98-yard jaunt. His 84-yard punt this season is a Conference record.

When the Yankees smashed down the Baltimore Colts in their Nov. 2 game Sanders cracked three Conference records.

SANDERS is 27 years old and comes from Temple, Tex. He played football at Cameron, Tex., Junior college before entering the University of Texas.

He played football while in the service, splitting his work between Georgia Pre-Flight and North Carolina Pre-Flight.

Sanders first was scouted and signed by the Washington Redskins with Ray Flaherty, former Redskin coach, and present Yankee coach, handling the contracts.

Sanders is a triple-threat back in the true sense of the much-used adjective. He works at all three

DiMaggio To Undergo Bone Chip Operation On Arm At Hopkins

BALTIMORE, Nov. 10 (INS)—Joe DiMaggio, slugging outfielder of the world's champion New York Yankees, will undergo a bone chip operation on his right arm on Thursday or Friday at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

DiMaggio, who entered the hospital late Sunday night, is under the care of Dr. George Bennett, famous bone specialist, who operated on the ballplayer's left heel last April.

Explorers Change Romney Tilt Date

Brother Gregory announced last night that the LaSalle High Explorers would meet the Romney High football team Saturday, November 15 at 8 o'clock at the Fort Hill Stadium instead of as previously scheduled.

The change of schedule was made because of a conflict on the Romney program. Both Beall High of Frostburg and the Explorers were slated to meet the Pioneers on the 21st, Brother Gregory said.

LaSalle agreed to move the date up one week to leave the way open for Beall and Romney to play next week.

The Pioneers have a record of five victories and three defeats this season while LaSalle has won two, lost five and tied one to date.

The officials for the game, according to Brother Gregory, will be Bobby Cavanaugh, referee; Ed Milbrady, umpire; and Bill Spangler, line judge.

Advance sale of tickets for the contest Saturday will be held at Schuber's Restaurant, E. of O. home, Sports Center and Wilson Hardware store, Brother Gregory stated.

Middies Scrimmage In Preparation For Penn State Game

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 10 (AP)—Coach Tom Hamilton let his regulars off with a light workout but ordered the reserves through a fast scrimmage as Navy hit the practice routine again today.

The Middies were getting in shape for Penn State next Saturday, their eighth foe of the season—and the seventh boasting an undefeated record going into a game with Navy.

Three of Navy's past opponents still preserve perfect records. Notre Dame, Penn and Georgia Tech rank well among the nation's first 10 teams.

One encouraging development today was assurance that Bill Hawkins, the Tars' leading ground gainer, should be ready for action against Penn State. The sturdy fullback was injured in practice early last week and worked only one play against Georgia Tech as Navy suffered its sixth loss.

On the other hand, previously expressed hopes that Pistol Pete Williams would be in shape for the fust with Penn State at Baltimore Municipal Stadium were woefully dimmed. Williams' ankle, once so badly sprained it was thought to have been fractured, still is not considered strong enough to function in actual play.

Gordon Richards Sets British Turf Record

LONDON, Nov. 10 (AP)—Gordon Richards, the office boy who answered a want ad for a stable lad and became the world's champion winning jockey, set another British turf record today by riding his 260th winner in one season.

Twenty, a four-year-old bay gelding, in the last race at Leicester provided Richards with the mount that broke his own British record of 259 wins in one season.

The 43-year-old Richards set that figure in 1935 when he exceeded Fred Archer's record of 246 which had stood for a half century and was thought to be secure for all time.

With 11 more days of the racing season, Richards stands a good chance of boosting his mark to a high that may last four decades.

Richards, who has been champion jockey 20 times in the past 23 years, has now ridden 3,472 winners in his career, a world record.

University of Miami is adding polo to its sports program this winter, but will remain competition to intramural activity the first season.

Majors Draft 26 Players As Clubs Pay Out $245,000

Brooklyn, Detroit, Yankees Refuse Pick

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 10 (AP)—Twenty-six bush leaguers got their chance at baseball's big time today as 13 clubs paid $245,000 for "em in the annual draft.

A flock of top talent was passed over by the pickers as they reached deep into the grab bag in hopes of finding a new star, rigid restrictions preventing "trading" of the minor talent. Only one player on the restricted list may be taken from any club.

Detroit ran into that barrier as it tried to pick up Clifford Dapper, 27-year-old catcher from Montreal. Dapper batted .291, drove in 105 runs and worked in 136 games for Mobile, Ala., last year, and was the loop's most valuable player. He was one of the choice plums in the draft, but he was saved for his Brooklyn owners through the fact pitcher Al Gerbeuser had been plucked from the Montreal roster by the St. Louis Browns, first choosers.

With Dapper's selection ruled out by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, Detroit joined the champion New York Yankees and the pennant winning Brooklyn Dodgers as the only clubs not making selection.

Leslie M. O'Connor, Chicago White Sox general manager reinstated recently by Chandler following a bitter controversy over the signing of a high school pitcher and a resultant $500 fine, was the day's big buyer.

O'Connor paid $35,000 for battery talent, three pitchers and a catcher, picking up catcher Raymond Fletcher from Milwaukee and hurlers Roman Brunwick from Houston, Tex., Alex Danelishen of Oklahoma City and Wilkesbarre, Pa., and James P. Goodwin of Jersey City, the latter a southpaw.

O'Connor's four-play deal gave the American League the edge in drafted talent, the junior circuit getting 14 players to 12 for the National.

Cleveland picked up William A. Kennedy, left-handed pitcher from Louisville, and Leonard Ratto, a classy infielder from Portland, Ore. Kennedy won 15 and lost two for Scranton last year, while Ratto batted .267 for the coast club and scintillated on defense.

Although severely injured in the Hagerstown game Saturday night and destined to miss the annual Turkey Day classic with Allegheny for the second straight season, Fort Hill's scabcat Ray Stevenson continued to hold a comfortable margin in the Tri-State scoring parade.

The luckless Stevenson who suffered a fractured vertebrae in a contest added his 14th touchdown to hike his total points scored to 84. Stevenson's running mate, Jimmy Manges tallied seven points with a touchdown and his 31st extra point from placement to hold on to second position with 61 markers.

Ridgeley's Joe Moss is third with 46 tallies, but since the Blackhaws have but one more contest with Franklin Friday it isn't likely the West Virginian fullback can catch the Scarlet and White leader.

LaSalle's Joseph "Jocko" Collins moved into fifth slot just three points behind Fort Hill's Glen Burke. Burke has counted 36 points and Collins 33.

Individual scoring records follow:

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(INS)—John Gunther's "Inside Europe" is the basis of an idea Laslo Vadnay, the playwright and Alexander Paal, ace cameraman, have for a picture almost too fantastic to be true.

Paal will take his camera inside Europe as it is today, with Gunther narrating a sort of documentary historical film. In other words, "Inside Europe"—Right now.

Esther Williams

One of the best directors in Hollywood, Robert Siodmak, goes to 20th in December to direct "The Chair for Martin Rome" with Vic Mature and Richard Conti.

Another prison story for Vic reminds me of his crack:

"My father always said I would wind up in jail, but he'd be pleased to know it's only a movie jail."

Esther Williams gave me a buzz, and she certainly is full of her trip on which she appeared with her movie, "This Time For Keeps." She says when she was making a personal appearance in New Haven with the Yale boys, a man made his way to the front carrying roses. She took a look and discovered it was her husband, Ben Gage, who arrived in town without telling her.

Esther tells me her eardrums are much better, and she hopes to be able to swim by the time her next picture is ready.

Letter from my west coast gang: Dear L. O. P.: Corinne Calvey paid us a visit and the kid is broken hearted over your scolding that she wasn't interested in her work at Paramount and broke appointment after appointment with her English coach.

"If she broke appointments, she certainly picked up English somewhere because she speaks very well for a French girl here just six months. As for so much night-clubbing, she says:

"I was 13 when the war broke out in France. When I came to this country and saw all this wonderful food and gaiety, I thought I was in paradise."

Tonight "Gentleman's Agreement" opens here in New York with almost as many stars present as if it were held in the film colony itself. Loretta Young, Lana Turner, Marlene Dietrich, Dick Powell and June Allyson are among those expected to be in the first night audience.

It will be a great occasion for Darryl Zanuck and it's such a pity he can't be there to share in the glory. Elia Kazan deserves much credit for his direction.

As for Dorothy McGuire and Gregory Peck—well, if you're fans, you're going to be even greater fans. That's how good they are.

Director Irving Rapper has been in a huddle in New York with Charlie Feldman. Result—he will direct "Glass Menagerie" for Feldman.

Charlie is hopeful of getting Helen Hayes for the coveted Laurette Taylor role, but don't hold your breath until he gets her. Helen isn't very happy about making a movie but she may do "Glass Menagerie," which was the acting plum of two years ago.

Snapshots of New York and Hollywood collected at random: Charlie MacArthur and Ludwig Bemelmans lunched at the colony.

Chatted a moment with Beth Leary, the late Maury Paul's close friend.

Visited Paul Kelly back stage at "Command Decision." How wonderful to see him so happy over the ovation he gets every night—and one he well deserves.

Edmund Goulding and the Earl of Warwick had lunch together. The Warwicks leave Saturday for Bermuda and I must say he looks as young and handsome as ever.

Hear Ina Claire's opening of "The Fatal Weakness" in Los Angeles was brilliant. Ina likes Hollywood so much she's planning to fly back for the Winter Ball Nov. 22.

Wonderful work Harold Russell, the handless veteran, is doing—but then, he's a wonderful person. Harold has turned down all theatre and night club engagements in order to speak to the youth of America on racial and religious understanding. That's all today.

Moorefield Council Will Force Collection Of Back Sewer Bills

Action Is Ordered
At Recent Meeting

By KATHERINE FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va.—Moorefield's Town Council will crack down on citizens owing back sewer bills, according to the action taken at the meeting of the council last week. All past due accounts will be billed and if not paid within a reasonable time the water service will be cut off.

A survey has been made of the multiple unit water users from a single meter and the minimum water rates will be charged to each occupant under the new regulations. An estimated additional 165 units will be added to the accounts under the new regulations.

W. Clarke stated that where two families live in the same house a water bill will be collected from each family unless they eat at the same table.

The Potomac Light and Power Company asked the council to advise citizens to notify the light company office immediately if any of the street lights go out and stated that the darkened lights would be fixed within 24 hours.

A report from the specialist on soil regarding the water pipe deterioration in the Addition suggested that a bacteria may be responsible for the rapid rusting through. Further study will be made of this problem.

The citizens on Lynn Street requested that sidewalks be built and the council promised to co-operate on construction next spring.

IN MEMORIAM

KELLER—In loving remembrance of our dear son and brother, Col. Harry R. Keller, who died two years ago today, Nov. 11.

We have only your memory, dear Harry. To remember your whole life through. How the sweetest will linger forever As we treasure the image of you.

Sadly missed by his Mother, Brothers and Sisters.

In loving remembrance of our dear wife and Mother, Mary C. Twigg, who departed this life 2 years ago today, Nov. 11, 1945.

What is home without a Mother? All things this world may send, But when we lost our darling Mother, We lost our dearest friend.

For those who have a Mother, Tender her with care, For you never knew her value Until you see her vacant chair.

Sadly missed by her Husband and Children.

The memory of our husband and Daddy, Harry Russell Keller, who died Nov. 11, 1945.

Memories are treasures none can steal. Death leaves a heartache none can heal. Some have forgotten you now that you're gone. But we will remember you no matter how long.

Flowers we place upon your grave Will wither and decay, But love for the one who sleeps beneath Will never fade away.

Always, PEG & JOYCE.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of expressing our sincere thanks and appreciation to our friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, Edward W. Taylor.

We also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes and donated cards for the funeral.

His wife and son, MRS. REBECCA TAYLOR, CHARLES E. TAYLOR, Dawson, Maryland.

Bil Allowing Clubs To Sell Liquor On Sunday Vetoed By Governor Lane

Whitworth Puzzled By Kimble's Action

Liquor Charge Filed Against Hugh Stride

(Local bills signed by the Governor yesterday are listed on Page 9.)

Governor Lane yesterday vetoed a much protested bill that would have permitted Allegheny County clubs to sell liquor on Sundays, and gave two specific reasons for his action.

Not included in the governor's reasons, but of much local interest, however, was a request by the sponsor of the bill, Senator Robert E. Kimble, (R-Allegheny) asking that the bill be vetoed, and a protesting telegram from members of the Allegheny County Retail Liquor Dealers Association.

The governor, who received hundreds of protests by telegram, letter, and telephone, said he was vetoing the measure because:

1—Nothing of an emergency character is involved.

2—Ample opportunity to be heard was not accorded to those who might oppose the proposed amendment of the law and, under the constitution, this act, if approved, would not be referable.

The bill which was passed by both House and Senate, without opposition, became a heated question in the county Sunday morning, when Protestant ministers, led by the Allegheny Methodist Association, circulated petitions at services, asking that the bill be vetoed.

Rev. Watson E. Holley, president of the Allegheny Methodist Association, said last night that Senator Kimble contacted him yesterday morning by telephone, and explained that he had already sent a telegram to the governor to veto the bill and added that he telephoned his message to the governor's executive secretary, C. F. Tucker.

Sen. Kimble, who offered an explanation for his sudden change in desire, the bill vetoed, left members of the Allegheny County Delegation to the Maryland General Assembly without explanation for his action and Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the Allegheny County House Delegation to the Maryland General Assembly, last night said:

"The delegation feels that Kimble as Senator Kimble sponsored the bill, one day and then changed his mind the next, we are left under a question as to what the Senator does want, and our confidence in future requests for legislation by Senator Kimble is shaken."

Kimble Explains Action
Senator Kimble said he requested the veto after he had conducted a personal poll of public opinion and found a majority against the bill. He said he regrets any implication that he was under pressure to introduce the measure as he always does what he "thinks best and what people want."

When he introduced the bill, Kimble said, he had in mind the possibility of making it a matter of "home rule" or local enforcement, but he did not have time to make the effort or preparation.

"I don't think we should have passed it without a public hearing," Kimble said, "and I believe the delegation will agree with me."

Sources close to the governor said he received more than 200 protesting telegrams yesterday morning, and last night Stanley Burke, secretary of the Allegheny County Retail Liquor Dealers Association said (Continued on Page 8, Col. 1)

A man identified as Hugh Stride, who police said operates a tavern at 751 Kelly Boulevard, was arrested at 11:30 o'clock last night on a charge of selling liquor without a license in violation of City Ordinance 1404, Section 1.

The arrest was made by two city policemen, working in plain clothes after, officers said, they purchased a pint of bonded whiskey in Stride's establishment.

Police said Stride told them he had a beer license. He posted $200 bond for a hearing Wednesday in Police Court.

Wood Outlines Special Insurance Rights For Vets

Automatic Credit Provided In Law

Special rights provided for World War II veterans under the Social Security law were outlined yesterday by William W. Wood, Jr., manager of the local Social Security office.

Those rights, Wood said, give a veteran full insurance credit if he should die within three years after his discharge from service, making possible monthly payments to his widow, children or parents.

According to the Social Security law, a worker must work a certain length of time before his family is entitled to payments at the time of his death. Veterans, while they were in uniform, were not considered to be employed. As a result of their time in the service, veterans either failed to gain, or lost their Social Security credits.

Wood explained that a special law was passed last year that gives automatic Social Security credit to veterans who were in the services for 90 days or longer and who have been honorably discharged. This special part of the Social Security law does not count if a veteran died while still in the armed forces, he added.

This veteran's part of the Social Security law furnishes death protection only. No credit can be applied to the veteran himself toward his own retirement at the age of 65. If the veteran does not die within three years of his discharge, then the automatic credit ceases to exist.

Wood said, "It makes no difference whether the veteran has ever worked under Social Security or not. If he has been in the service and if he dies before three years after he's out, then his people can be paid benefits."

Actual payments under the veteran's part of the Social Security law follow the same rules as the rest of the law. Survivors of veteran-workers who have died must make an application for payments before they can be paid. The place to make such an application is the Social Security office at Room 309, Postoffice Building.

Elks Present Check For $6,020 To Crippled Children's League

Presentation Made At 1947 "Minstrelts"

Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B. P. O. Elks, last night at its colorful, fast-moving "Minstrelts of 1947" presented a check for $6,020 to the Allegheny County League for Crippled Children.

The check, almost double last year's previous high mark of $3,200, was presented to Miss Henrietta Schwarzenbach, president of the League, by John H. Mosner, chairman of the Elks Minstrel Committee.

Held annually by the Elks for the benefit of the Crippled Children's League, Mosner pointed out during the presentation that the minstrel show raised $2,700 in 1945 and $2,200 in 1944.

This year he said, the goal was $3,500. He pointed out that this year, William L. Sherman, local coal operator, was responsible for raising $1,200 of this year's $6,020 fund.

Introduced from the stage by DeLisle Chaney of the Elks for the presentation of the check were Dr. George Bennett, Dr. David Weinberg and Dr. George Eaton, all of Baltimore, and Dr. R. R. Hutcheson, Washington, specialists who conduct special clinics for the Crippled Children's League. Mosner presented Mrs. Grace M. Fisher, owner of the Maryland Theater, and said she furnishes the theater every year without charge for the "Minstrelts."

From the song and dance specialty of Rose Marie Matthews, 44-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Matthews, who literally brought down the house to the graceful interpretation of the hula by Miss Pauline Durant and the songs, specialties and comedy, the minstrel was a hit.

Forestry Unit To Start Woodlands Flood Survey

5,926 Jobless Pay Claims Are Filed

Program Will Begin In Big Savage Area

A total of 5,926 claims for unemployment compensation were filed at the local office of the Unemployment Compensation Board in October, according to Francis A. Kenney, local manager.

Of that number, which includes state, federal and interstate claims, 3,090 were continued claims under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance, and 2,213 were state claims.

Eighty-three original Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance claims were filed during the month and 200 original state applications were filed.

Actual field work in Garrett County will be done by District Forester Jack E. Paulhamus, who will be assisted by Forest Supervisors Cecil Ramsey of the Potomac State Forest and M. E. Martin, Sr. of the Savage River State Forest.

In Allegheny and Washington Counties, Assistant District Forester Carl Hieckie will head the field work, assisted by Park Superintendent E. C. Whyte of Fort Frederick State Park.

Results of the survey are expected to show existing conditions in the area and result in a program of corrective measures.

The forest and farms play a large part in controlling tributary waters during heavy rains and sudden thaws are the non-regulated cutting of timber and location of logging roads in positions where they form stream beds after heavy rains.

During the survey efforts will be made to educate farmers and timbermen in proper methods of cutting timber so that a stand of young trees will remain to absorb water and relocation of logging roads.

A flood survey of woodlands in the Upper Potomac River drainage basin that may eventually reduce the local hazard of high waters, will be conducted by the Department of State Forests and Parks, according to William A. Parr, district forester.

The survey, requested by the United States Forest Service, will cover all woodland in the Maryland section of the Potomac River drainage basin west of Hancock, according to Parr, is scheduled to begin immediately.

Opening phases of the survey will center around the Big Savage sector in Allegheny and Garrett Counties, with eventual survey of the Washington County area coming last.

Will Make Maps

In its initial stages, work will consist of visiting all non-farm forest areas after which maps will be made showing forest ownerships and boundaries. Aerial photographs and topographical maps will be used in connection with the work.

Parr explained that two of the greatest hazards that result in floods following heavy rains and sudden thaws are the non-regulated cutting of timber and location of logging roads in positions where they form stream beds after heavy rains.

Wolff Reinstates Celanese Worker

A Celanese worker who was discharged in February was reinstated and granted two weeks of back pay in an arbitration award handed down by Sidney A. Wolff, New York, arbitrator in a case between the Celanese Corporation of America and Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO.

George Knippenberg, who works on a shift in the spinning department, was discharged February 17 on a charge of sleeping while working on the "cat eye" shift at the plant. Union officials pointed out that the usual penalty for such an offense is a week's suspension without pay but that the company discharged the World War II veteran on the strength of a continued bad record in violating plant rules.

Wolff pointed out in the decision that the man was being given another chance to make good in the work he has been engaged in since 1935. Knippenberg served in the armed forces from August, 1944 to December, 1945, and is handicapped by a 30 per cent military disability. His reinstatement was effective one week after the decision of October 20.
